THE ELEVATOR ROW.

Chicago. Aug. 25.—The elevator row, settled as most people supposed by compromise agreement adopted by baild on the beard of trade, has proken out again.

This time there is a new party at interest, the railroad. There have been filled with three of the great western systems peremptors demands, signed by a dozen of the receiving and shipping firms of the beard of trade, that terminal facilities for the nandling of arain and flax seed be furnished that would not violate, as it was claimed the present grain elevator system did, the plainest and most important provisions of the interfact commerce law. The reads upon which notice has been served by the thippers are the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Illinois Control, and the Burlington, except that the names of the Warehuse men leasing the terminals on these lines were inserted. Armour & Co., in the restore of the Illinois Central.

These formal demands are signed by the firms which led the light against the elevators on the board of trade, Boyden & Co. rand others.

The manner in which this law is pertinent is explicitly set forth in the rotter lied with each of the railroads, in receipt of this demand, will conform to them. It is presumed they will be ignored. The demands are formal preliminaries, however, of a great legal battle between the grain trade and the railroads over that law to which appeal was made by the General Managers' association during the great July strike.

as possible, yet it cropped out in the testimony of each one that the moving cause which induced them to put up their money was the undoubted belief that Lafayette could hit that hair while "Al Woods, of Denver," could not, because he could not see it. There was nothing to show that the contestants in the match did not intend to show up and shoot on the morning agreed upon.

COUNTY ATTORNEY MURPHY

County Attorney Murphy, in reply, answered Mr., Ritchle's criticism of his complaint, and for that genileman's edification proceeded to explain the document, adding sarcastically, "It may be that counsel is unacquainted with the drawing up of complaints for conspiracy." Mr. Murphy read from the law on the subject of conspiracy, and maintained that Quilnan was an accessory to all the offenses of the other defendants. To Furey he referred as a "penniless vagrant in this city," observing that if the witnesses whom the prosecution had called had known the true name and character of the man, it was not likely they would have staked a cent of their money. Counsel took occasion in the course of subsequent remarks to advert to that "bunco crowd," which led Mr. Sutherland to corowd," re

Counsel took occasion in the course of subsequent remarks to advert to that "bunco crowd," which led Mr. Sutherland to inquire promptly: "Which bunco crowd do you refer to?"

"I refer to your bunco crowd," rejoined the county attorney with stinging emphasis, which provoked some laughing among the spectators.

Mr. Murphy ridiculed the suggestion of the defense that because Wells was the only man to whom the money was the only man to whom the money was entrusted as stakeholder and because he turned it over to others in violation of that trust, that therefore these defendants were not guilty of embezzle-ment. Of course they were principals in the crime of embezzlement if the offense was committed. Why were these men armed, he asked, and why these men armed, he asked, and why did they attempt to conceal their money, if they were innocent of any wrong doing? Why did Furey attempt to conceal $60 of money when at the police station and afterwards try to bribe a police officer if he was innocent? It was grange, if this was to be a bona fide transaction, for the men concerned in it to have been found lying on the ground near Liberty park in mud puddles, with revolvers within their reach and money tucked away between their underelothing. Irrespective of the dishonorable conduct of Gibbs, Rilley and the rest of them, the interests of public justice demanded Gibbs, Rlley and the rest of them, the interests of public Justice demanded that the defendants should, nevertheless, be punished. Even if it were conceded that Gibbs and Riley had been guilty of dishonorable conduct, that did not justify these defendants in committing larceny of their money. Mr. Murphy asked that the accussed be held to await the action of the grand jury, and "that these cold-blooded, deliberate bunco men be not turned loose, upon the community to victimize another set of suckers." (Laughter.)
